ity that we could only regard them with mute wonder.

All these things, disjointed and unconnected as they seemed, were entirely consistent with each other, and were harmonious parts of a well-designed plan, of which we at the North have been the quiet and unsuspecting dupes. It is perfectly well known by those who have given attention to the subject, that for years there has been a settled determination in the Gulf States to break up the Union, from which they were thoroughly estranged. The ulterior object was the formation of a grand Stave Empire, to embrace the islands in the Gulf of Mexico and the territories facing it. This plan has long been the absorbing idea at the South. For a time its success, seemed probable, under the auscide the seems of a probable, under the auscide the seems of a probable. For a time its success, seemed probable, under the auscide the seems of a west Point has again been the seeme of a plot, compared with which that attempted by Benedict Arrold sinks into insignificance. The value of arms and munitions of war stoled by Mr. Floyd, together with money raised upon his fraudulent acceptances, which, by a masterly stroke of bodic, were sold North, amounts to many millions of dollars. Adding the cost of the forts surrendered, the whole amount of which our Government has been despoiled by this stupendous conspiracy, must equal by the cost of the forts surrendered, the whole amount o cess seemed probable, under the anspices of Walker, but he failed from the defective qualities in his own character. At one time Gen. Quitman was near heading a formy upon Cuba. hending a formy upon Cuia. The fails are of the feeble expeditions sent out but to Guot and consolidate the sentiment on which they were based, and to turn attention in another direction, from which adequate means might be obtained for expeditions fitted out on a much more imposing scale. The first step of the conspirators, consequently, was to seize upon our over Government, and either compel it to antext that would disarm the Northern, and arm the Southern States, and supply all the means not only for defensive, but aggressive warfare. The election of the feeble and compliant Pierce was the stepping stone to their entrance to power, which was fully secured to them by the appointment of Mr. Jefferson Davis, who for a life-time had been a determined disministration, as he is now of the present Secession movement. The composition of Mr. Pierce's cabinet did not suffer the conspirators to go further than to mature their plans.

The election of Mr. Buchanan followed, and wa now know that his nomination was effected upon the express assurance of coperation and sympathy with the extreme Southern sentiment. Colb became Secretary of the Treasury, Floyd Secretary of War. and Thompson of the Interior.—Everything in the Government was arranged to suit their designs. The President was a supple tool in their hands. So were the other Secretaries. The leadership was assigned by general consent to Mr. Davis, who, by virtue of his Chairman-ship of the Senate Committee on Milstip of the Senate Committee on Mil-itary Affairs, possessed great power, and a thorough acquaintance with all the millitary men and defences of the country. With an impudence which, from its daring, loses much of its baseness, the head quarloses much of its baseness, the head quarters of the insurgents were transferred to West Point, at which Mr. Davis spent the Sumner months as Chairman of a Committee of Examination of this post. The Great Conspiracy—What are its Plans and Purposes.

[From the N. Y. Times]

For three months events of startling magnitude have so closely followed, one upon the heels of another, that our whole time has hardly sufficed for their record.

We have been too much entranced by the phenomena to study their origin or law.

Astounding robberies and defsications; the most shameless, abandonment of public trusts; the treachery of civil and military officers; the surrender of the forts, armametus and munitions of war of one-half the Confederacy; the disarming of one portion of it to arm the other; the conspiracy in the Cabinet to destroy the government, in which the facile Buchanan has been so much involved as to completely demoralize the man, and destroy all ability for prompt and independent action— events and developments so unforseen and incredible, have occurred with such rapidity that we could only regard them with mute wonder.

All these things, disjointed and uncon-ranged to suit their designs. The President was a supple tool in their hands. So were the other Secretaries. But events clearly indicated that the power was gradually slipping from their grasp. Douglas became the inevitable candidate for the Democracy, and his election must be defeated at all hazards. The disruption of the Democratic Party was to follow, and with it the secession of the Southern States, and the inauguration of the new explosion fatal to all who may happen to tenae-restlessness they display; hence se-cession and the formation of a new Con-federacy, with a vast domain, where slave-ry can indefinitely expard. To compress it within narrow limits, is to provoke an explosion fatal to all who may happen to be near. be near.

Letter from Judge Douglas to the Editor of the Memphis, Tennessee, Appeal.

WARHINGTON, Feb. 2, 1861. Mesers. Editors: -I have this moment end with amazement an editorial in your paper of the 30th ult., in which you assume that I am "favoring the immediate with-drawal of the remaining States from the Confederacy, as a peace measure, to avert the horrors of civil war and with the view mittee of Examination of this post. In persuance of the programme laid down, Mr. Floyd commenced the transfer of arms and munitions from North to South, which were placed in exposed positions where they could be readily seized. The forts were purposely left ungarrisoned and defenceless. To supply such means as the official relations of Mr. Floyd did not allow him to steal, he commenced the issue, on a vast scale, of his acceptances, naminally to contractors for transporting of Government stores, which, being supposed to be obligations of Government, were esgerly purchased in the Northern States, where capital was abundant. In this way the military chest of the New Confederacy was to be, and has been, to a considerable extent, supplied. of reconstruction on a constitutional basis.' and has been, to a considerable extent, supplied.

An equally important step was a thorough manipulation of the Army, the officers of which were so disposed, that in all cases where it was possible, confederates and tools of the Secessionists were placed, at points where they could readily join them, and at the appointed signal deliver over the forts and magazines in their over the forts and magazines in their charge. Such-officers as were known to be be loved were carefully withdrawn from the places to be seized. To others in the secret, furloughs were given, which have been spent in the Southern States in drilling bands of insurgents, or in visits to Europe to purchase arms, the first angular to the disruption of the United States is the great tulwark of slavery on this continent, and that the disruption of the American Union involves the inevitable destruction of slavery, and is an indispensable necessity, to the attainment of that end, they are determined to accomplish their paramount object by any means within their P. C. HILDRETH & BRO. 53 Main Street. power. For these reasons, the Northern Disunionists, like the Disunionsts of the South, are violently opposed to the com-promises or constitutional amendments, or south, are violently opposed to the compromises or constitutional ameadments, or efforts at conciliation, whereby pea e should be restored and the Union preserved. They are striving to break up the Union under the pretence of unbounded devotion to it. They are struggling to overthrow the Constitution while professing undying attachment to it, and a willingness to make any sacrifice to maintain it. They are trying to plunge the country into civil war as the surest means of destroying the Union, upon the plea of enforcing the laws and protecting the public property. If they can defeat every kind of adjustment or compromise by which the points may be satisfactorily settled, and keep up the irritation, so as to induce the Border States to follow the Cotton States.

Border States to follow the Cotton States, they will feel certain of the accomplish-ment of their ultimate designs. Nothing will gratify them so much, or contribute so effectually to their success, as the secession of Tennessee and the bor-der States. Every State which withdraws from the Union increases the relative pow-er of Northern abolitionists to 'defeat a satisfactory adjustment, and to bring on war which must sooner or later end in final separation and recognition of the in-dependence of the two contedding sections. If, on the contrary, Tennessee, North Caro-lina and the border States, will remain in the Union border States, will remain in the Union, and, will unite with the conservative and Union loving men of all parties in the North in the adoption of such a compromise as will be alike honorable, safe and just to the people of all the States, peace and fraternal feeling will soon return, and the cotton States come back, and the Union be rendered pernetual.

and the cotton States come back, and the Union be rendered perpetual.

Pardon the repetition, but it cannot be too strongly impressed upon all who love our country, that secession and war will be the destruction not only of the present Union, but will blast all hopes of a reconstruction upon a constitutional basis. I trust you will do me the justice to publish this note in your next issue. this note in your next issue.

I am, very truly, your friend, S. A. Douglas.

The Detectives Outwitted.

The reputation that Runn Haskins possessed for shrewdness and cunning has been cosiderably enhanced since his recent masterly escape from the Auburn Prison. It is well known that this accomplished rogue, assisted by potential but unknown influences, succeeded in walking free and clear from the prison, clothed in genteel raiment, with the nicest beaver, the finest kids and the glossiest patent leather boots. Immediately after his escape the most rigid measures were taken to scenre his arraiment, with the nicest beaver, the linest kids and the glossiest patent leather boots. Immediately after his escape the most rigid measures were taken to scented detectives were sent out in pursuit; but all attempts to catch the rogue proved failures. A few nights ago it was reported that Haskins, emboldened by his prolonged escape, intended to visit a ball at a "taveral" in one of the small town in Onandaga connty, in the vicialty of his former home. The world the sent discrives who knew than Haskins personally, attermines to attend the ball, and dressing up in ther best, disguised as gay cavaliers, they made their appearance at the tavern just as the fiddle had made its preliminary scrapes and tha fair couples had commence: agitating the "light fantastic toe." To purchase tickets and "sail in" were but the work of a moment, and scon the gallant detectives were enjoying the delights of the dauce, while at the same time their most vigilant glances were directed about the room for the escaped Haskins. During the third or fourth quadrille the leading detective sought and obtained an introduction to a modest appearing lady, who had for the most part, sat quietly in the shadow of a room, attended assidnously by a polite and attentive gallant. Her quiet demeanor, her graceful figure, neat and insteful dress, her beautifal flowing curls, had won upon the detective, and, much to his companion's annoyance, he succeeded in monopolizing her company through two or three quadrilles, a waitz, a contra-dance and several polkas. A few dances after supper, a good deal of small talk between the two, and the lady announced her intention of leaving. The lady excased herself from the obsequious detective and after an absence of a few minutes appeared with furs and hood ready for departure. The detective, greatly regretting her early de-parture, accompanied her to the sleigh, tucked the robes closely about her, bid her good-bye and returned to the bell room in parant of Haskins. The de-tectives returned to Syncuse, and report-ed to one or two of the prison officers, who were inxiously awaiting the sequel of the visit, that they were satisfied that Has-kins was not in the country. It has sub-sequently been ascertained, beyond a doubt, that the fair lady who so completely won upon the affections of the enamored de-
